WELCOME RAIN

AFTER the recent warm, dry spell, the heavy rain which fell early Wednesday morning was welcomed alike by the farmers, gardeners and horticultural fans.

Previously, the crops, gardens, trees and flowers had taken on a somewhat wilted aspect, but the showers on Wednesday have added new life and color to growth, and lawns and shrubs are a vibrant green again.

With the coming Monday a holiday, the town and district will no doubt be looking its best. Visitors and residents both will agree that it is the first time in many years that the horticultural and arboreal features of our town and district have appeared so promising.

This is a great tribute to local farmers, gardeners and horticulturalists, whose labors at home beautification and garden surroundings are this year "things of beauty" and though we won't go so far as adding "joys forever," they at least show a reward for their painstaking efforts.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our many friends for their sympathy and assistance in our recent sad bereavement, also for the beautiful flowers.

United Church Anniversary

Very successful anniversary services were held last weekend in the United Churches of this district. Rev. Harry S. McDonald, of Calgary, gave a stirring message to good sized congregations at each point.

On Monday evening the ladies of the Knox United Church served a delightful dinner in the basement of the church, which was followed by an entertainment at which Miss Margaret Laurence, of Calgary, delighted the audience with her dramatic readings. Miss Laurence gave three groups of three readings each and also presented in costume Pauline Johnson's poem, "The Legend of the Great Grey Archway." We hope to hear this young lady in Didsbury again. Assisting in the program were Miss Florence Chamberlain, Mr. Jack Robertson, Miss Marjory and Mr. Kenneth Burns and Misses Dora and Reta Mae Fawcett.

Camp Meeting Starts Next Week

The annual camp meeting of the M. B. C. Church will open on Thursday, July 4th, and will continue until July 14th.

The evangelist will be Rev. J. G. Bringdale of Tacoma, Wash., who will be assisted by other special workers.

Some of the highlights will be the Young People's Rally Day on July 10th and the Missionary Day on Friday, July 12th.

Young people's and children's meetings will be held daily at 1:30 p.m.

Rev. C. J. Hallman, presiding elder, will be in charge and the public are cordially welcome.

Ambulance Fund Goes Over the Top

Although quite a number of pledges have yet to come in the Didsbury and District Ambulance Fund amounts to sufficient to purchase an ambulance and the amount subscribed in excess, which will likely amount to $200 or $300, will be used to purchase further ambulance equipment. According to information received from the Red Cross headquarters an ambulance will be purchased and it will be designated to the Didsbury and District by a brass plaque, which will be placed on the ambulance.

All pledges which are still outstanding should be handed in to Mayor Reiber by Saturday if possible.

WEDDINGS

KREBS—WEIDNER

On Wednesday, June 19, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Lila Grace, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Weidner, became the bride of Mr. Allen Clarence Krebs, second son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Krebs. Rev. J. M. Fawcett performed the ceremony at the home of the groom, under an archway of wild roses with wedding bell in centre. The room was decorated with pink and white streamers.

The bride entered the room on the arm of her father to the strains of the bridal chorus, played by her aunt, Mrs. S. Mailer. She wore a dress of pale blue embroidered net and a full-length white wedding veil, fashioned in cap style with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Beatrice Landeen, the bridesmaid, was frocked in a floor-length gown of pink net and carried a bouquet of wild roses and fern.

Little Joan Allen, niece of the groom, was flower girl. She also wore a pink dress with blue trimming.

Mr. Willie Weidner, brother of the bride, was best man, while Royden Cowitz, nephew of the groom, acted as ring-bearer and carried the wedding ring in a basket of wild roses.

During the signing of the register Mrs. Carl Russell, aunt of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly."

After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served to about 65 guests.

In the evening a wedding dance was held at the Melvin Community hall.

The happy couple left by motor on Thursday for a short honeymoon at Banff and Jasper.

Death On The Highways

The fearful carnage that is the accompaniment of warfare among the belligerent armies on the battlefields of Europe is the subject of shuddering comment daily among the people of this continent. "Isn't it awful?" "Isn't it terrible?" are the queries heard as men and women listen to radio reports of the conflict and scan the headlines of the daily newspapers.

Yet the slaughter which is taking thousands of lives on the highways on this side of the Atlantic, and a growing toll at that, is passed over without comment, or with nothing more than a shrug of the shoulder. People have become so used to reports of accidents in which two or three are killed here and three or four lose their lives there, together with a few more injured, that they have not awakened to full realization of the loss of life in the aggregate caused by the automobile.

Despite the safety campaigns inaugurated by police forces, motor clubs and groups of citizens who have sufficient facts at their command to appreciate the dire peril which attends the motorist when he fares forth on American and Canadian highways, there appears to be no let up in loss of life and limb. On the contrary, recent figures indicate that the menace is becoming greater year by year and month by month. Already, before the holiday season, when the peak of traffic may be expected, indications are that the grim harvester will take a bigger yield on the highways this year than in 1939. It is already a matter of record, for instance, that serious road accidents in Ontario in February of this year totalled 1,226 as compared with 806 in the corresponding month a year ago, a startling increase of approximately 50 per cent.

Unfortunately there is nothing to indicate that the situation will not become progressively worse as the summer wears towards fall, and insofar as the Canadian highway menace is concerned is likely to be accentuated with the influx of a much larger number of American tourists who are obliged, because of war hazards abroad, to spend their summer vacations on the roads of this continent.

Roads Or Drivers?

Very properly the Canadian governments, boards of trade and other organizations are doing their utmost to influence the American tourists to turn their wheels in the direction of this country this summer. It is a traffic which should be encouraged for economic reasons as well as in the interests of cementing the growing friendship between the peoples of the two great North American nations. Indeed, freer communication and closer contacts between Canadians and citizens of the United States may go a long way towards amplifying and encouraging the sympathy which the latter feel towards the Allied countries and the principles for which they are fighting. But, as has already been intimated, there is an element of danger which must be avoided, if anything can be done to minimize the risks of the road in this country.

The difficulty is to know what to do about it. Punishments for carelessness and more restrictive legislation do not appear to be the answer to the problem. Even safety first campaigns conducted through various agencies do not seem to be as effective as they might be, although their objective, that of awakening the motorist to the consciousness of his responsibility, is all to the good.

One school of thought interested in the problem has suggested that much of the blame for loss of life and limb on the highways should be placed on the highways themselves. These authorities assert, and with some degree of truth that high speed, high powered and efficient automobiles have outstripped the roads on which they are used. In other words, road designing and road construction is not keeping pace with the rapid improvements to the automobile.

On the other hand there are those who contend, likewise with some truth to support their assertions, that the driver is to blame for most of the mishaps on the highways. They say that nearly all accidents are the result of negligence on the part of the driver and quote statistics and results of surveys to show that few accidents are the result of ineffective equipment, such as slack brakes, sticking accelerators and the like. They declare that what is needed to make the highways safe for travel is re-birth of the motorist—a new spirit on the road.

Two Main Requirements

It is quite evident that the automobile is efficient and that both the highways and the motorists must share the blame for accidents. If accidents are to be cut down as the volume of traffic continues to grow roads and highways must be designed and built to meet, not the immediate needs of the present day but those of the years to come and at the same time drivers must be imbued with a greater measure of common sense, courtesy and carefulness than have guided their actions on the roads in the past.

When modern highways, built to match the requirements of the present day automobile and those of the future, are constructed and the motorist has acquired more common sense, then, and then only, will the roads of the country be really safe.

London Stores Employ People To Untie Knots In String

War-time has created a new job in England. Many of the big London stores and business firms have appointed full-time unravellers, reports the London Daily Sketch. The work consists of untying thousands of knots, disentangling thousands of yards of string. Rope and string, thrown away in peace time, is now carefully kept, since supplies are cut down to about a third of pre-war requirements.

Discipline Needed

The Results Of Experimental Theories Are Shown

The general idea of progressive education is to grant the pupil an extraordinary amount of freedom with little or so restraint or discipline. It is an exceptional child who does not develop into a brash adolescent with a casual view of those moral standards which never vary from generation to generation. They weaken or quit when faced with the slightest of adverse circumstances or temptation because they honestly do not know how else to meet the situation. The marks left in this world by those people who knew childhood discipline, often strict, and who could discipline themselves when the need arose, provides the practical answer to these experimental theories. Red Cross Blankets

Need For Woolen Blankets For Refugees Is Most Urgent

Once again the rallying cry of "Help the Red Cross" has rung across Canada. This time it came direct from France to Toronto and the west received it within the hour. The appeal was so urgent for the thousands of almost starving and almost naked refugees that it could not possibly be met from mills and stores. Every housewife in Canada has been asked to do her bit and when the last bale is shipped it is pretty safe betting there will be nothing in all the west for the moths to feast on this summer. The cry reached the west just as the good housekeepers had all the blankets washed or cleaned and were about to store them for summer. Merchants had ordered their supplies into moth proof storage during the first week of June.

What happened when the depots opened was that givers were waiting with their bundles. Men, single men, were rushing through the first open door of the stores where blankets could be bought. The instructions were very simple, very clear, very explicit. The need is for all wool blankets, double or single, new or not too much worn and clean. The used blankets to be kept together and the new likewise and each blanket marked as to whether it was new or used.

In the country districts where the call could not reach the Red Cross groups or individuals it will be safe to ship any wool blankets that can be spared to any Red Cross headquarters. That what is sent must be wool blankets is made very definite. Just why other covering will not be taken at present no doubt will be explained later.

Farmers Of Canada Are Playing A Major Role In Furthering War Effort

The generalissimo of one of the most important branches of Canada's war machine, a commander-in-chief without a uniform, sat behind a huge desk studying reports. There was a look of quiet satisfaction on his face—and no wonder.

For field messages from his staff informed him that the manoeuvres of his far-flung forces were progressing successfully on all fronts. The man in overalls, behind the plow, like the man in khaki, behind the gun, was geared for action.

From convoy ports on the Atlantic seaboard, freighters painted a protective drab grey moved out in steady procession, heavy laden with food... food for the troops to march on, food to ward hunger from the doorstep of the Motherland, food to win victory with.

But for every shipload which left another shipload was being produced. From the most Eastern tip of Nova Scotia to the most Western tip of British Columbia the farmers of the Dominion had shouldered their job with a will.

So there was a look of quiet satisfaction on the face of Hon. James Garfield Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, as he sat behind his huge desk studying reports.

"We have never been better prepared to meet the requirements of Great Britain at war, in the matter of supplying food, than we are now," he told this interviewer.

This, in the light of recent events, is fortunate indeed. The United Kingdom, in ordinary times, has drawn heavily on Denmark, and to some extent on Norway, Holland and Belgium, for provisions. When Hitler's hordes trampled those countries, the part which Canada must play as a larder was multiplied.

And the things which Mr. Gardiner had been doing sprang into new prominence.

The man who directs this country's agriculture seldom uses the word "agriculture". He speaks, instead of "the farmer". Not farmers, as a general group, but "the farmer". Behind masses of statistics and involved tariff schedules and freight rates, he manages to keep the individual in sight.

He believes in the individual, as such, and thinks it is lucky for Canada that the farmer has remained an individualist.

"It is just possible," he told us, "that the fact that farming is about the only industry that remains on an individual basis is the real reason the farmer produces food, the greatest national necessity in war or peace, without giving first thought to profit."

A farmer himself, and proud of it, he wonders sometimes whether consumers appreciate the agricultural producer. "The prices for Canadian farm products were at a very low level when the war started. They have advanced since, but they have not yet advanced to normal levels. This is why the farmer feels that while he has made a good job of production, insufficient attention has been paid by those who will need the food more and more as the war continues, to getting prices back at least to normal. The main criticism at present raised by the farmer is that the prices of other commodities are out of line with those of farm commodities. He maintains that some way should be found of providing him with his necessities at prices which compare favorably with those he is obtaining for necessities he provides for others."

But Mr. Gardiner assures that there will be no mutiny in the ranks of those who march behind the plow until Hitler has been conquered. "Because of his very nature there will not at any time be any bickering on the part of the farmer himself, with regard to production, while the war lasts. But every possible effort should be made to see to it that he is not discriminated against as compared with men in other industries, in the matter of returns."

In some quarters the generalissimo of Canadian agriculture has been condemned for not giving his forces enough direction. He is disinclined to take the charge too seriously. "If one is to judge the farmer's performance, basing judgment on criticisms made in other directions to the effect that other industries have not been ready for war, it must be admitted that he farmer's industry is organized on a basis which gives better results from a national point of view than others."

When Hitler marched on Poland, Canada had the greatest storage of wheat on record. She was in a position to produce, and has produced, the greatest run of hogs on record. She had considerable storages of dairy products, and large supplies of fruit and vegetables.

"On May 1," to quote Mr. Gardiner again, "we had equal or greater quantities of every important food product in store in Canada than in other recent years, with the exception of cheese. The present production of cheese is on a level which will give us greater quantities for delivery this year than usual."

"Can the part the Canadian farmer is playing to bring about an Allied victory be exaggerated?" we asked.

"Well," smiled the Minister of Agriculture, "there never was a war lord, from the days of the Caesars down, who did not prepare for war without first building up his supplies of food. And Napoleon said an army marches on its stomach. No, you can't exaggerate the importance of the farmer. He is essential."

So, in their fertile valleys, and on their flat prairies, Canada's farmers, Canada's army of farmers, are working to defeat the Hun—pushing their plows toward victory. Ian Selanders in Ottawa Journal.

Economic Development

Says Agriculture Will Continue To Be Saskatchewan's Major Industry

Agriculture will continue to be Saskatchewan's major industry for years to come, Premier Patterson of Saskatchewan declared, but mining and manufacturing promise to play an increasingly important part in the province's future development.

Speaking at the closing luncheon of the three-day annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Mr. Patterson said roughly one-third of his province's area is covered by the Cambrian shield and that it will undergo a development "similar to what has taken place in northern Ontario and northern Quebec."

Manufacturing had lagged behind partly because most early settlers came to take up land and farm. Crop failures and depressed prices had driven home the proportion of Saskatchewan's lop-sided economic development.

Nevertheless, great strides had been made in manufacturing associated with the processing of agricultural products. Milling production last year exceeded $20,000,000, packing plant production $10,000,000, and milk and dairy products $8,000,000.

These three industries produced about 50 per cent. of the total value of Saskatchewan's manufactured products, he said, adding:

"These figures would be greatly increased if we could include the value of Saskatchewan wheat, livestock and dairy products which are shipped outside the province to be processed and manufactured in other provinces."

There was a possibility of great hydro-power development but the sites were in the north and transmission costs would be prohibitive for the present at least.

Mr. Patterson blamed Saskatchewan's relief problem of the last 10 years more on the low cost of wheat than on crop failures.

"Even in the urban centres a considerable part of the unemployment condition was caused by crop failures," he said, "and only in part to those conditions which created unemployment in other provinces of Canada."

George Bernard Shaw Tells Where Hitler Made Awful Blunder

George Bernard Shaw said that Adolf Hitler had made the "awful blunder" of frightening the British.

"Now that we're thoroughly frightened," he said, discussing the government's emergency powers, "we'll be all right. Until the British are frightened they never do anything but play cricket, football, hopscotch and tennis."

"The Kaiser made the mistake of frightening the English and now Hitler has made the same awful blunder. . . Now Hitler is going to find out what we're like when we're frightened."

Making Bread Is Quite Different From The Old Way

It was only in the ancient world that they had to use "unleavened" bread. Our great-great grandmothers began leavening their bread with yeast many years ago, but it was a slow process, and this precious leavening agent was most carefully preserved, often passed around a neighborhood, to keep it fresh and active. It it "ran out" or the lively germ in the ferment began to go stale, it was often necessary to go miles and miles to get a new "starter" and then it must be used often, with fresh ingredients added to keep it powerful.

Slowly chemical experiments developed a combination of potassium carbonate and vinegar to make a quick reaction, then bicarbonate of soda appeared, and regular baking soda. It was used with sour milk to work up a reaction which leavened a batter.

Old recipe books call for stated amounts of soda and cream of tartar, which reacted upon one another and caused a fizz. Finally manufacturers developed baking powder, a substance all-in-one, which forms an ideal leavening agent. Because the action is speedier than the yeast method, products using it are called "quick breads".

Manufacture In West

Many New Factories To Be Established In Manitoba

Hon. J. C. McDiarmid, Manitoba minister of mines and industry, told a banquet meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at Winnipeg that new factories should be established in Manitoba, especially in Winnipeg where "we have the cheapest Hydro-Electric power on the continent."

"Progress has been made in manufacturing in this province in the last few years," Mr. McDiarmid said, "but more should be accomplished." During the last 25 years, Manitoba had grown from a province whose economy was based on farm production into one with more than 1,000 factories, producing practically everything necessary for the daily life of an individual.

He told the meeting of Canadian business leaders that they should bring their manufacturing plants west, closer to the consuming public and asked why such a move had not been made by the makers of farm implements, 75 per cent. of whose total sales go to western farmers.

A dictator doesn't care whether his people are patriotic so long as they are afraid of his firing squads.

Los Angeles is the largest city in the United States; it covers more ground than New York city.

British medical experts are experimenting with diets to raise the stamina of fighter pilots at the dizzy heights they fly their streamlined planes in this war.

Eight months' experience of wartime conditions in France has taught the air ministry that fighters normally operate at heights of 25,000 and 30,000 feet, an altitude far above the ceiling of planes in the first Great War. Up there in the rarified atmosphere oxygen must be inhaled and, even with this stimulant, a man's energy is sapped quickly because the slightest exertion produces exaggerated physical and mental fatigue.

The war has produced many new problems for the air force, and one of them is the necessity of building up the physical and mental stamina of fighter pilots to stand these heights. Another is the "blacking out" of a pilot due to centrifugal force pulling the blood from his head in a steep, vertical turn. The coma may be only momentary and some pilots may stand a higher pull than others but the problem of overcoming it is there just the same.

"Black out" is the direct result of the speed of a modern fighter. With a machine hurtling through space at 350 or 400 miles an hour it doesn't take much of a turn to drain the blood from the pilot's head, particularly if he is up 25,000 or 30,000 feet sucking oxygen through a tube.

Two or three incidents related by the officer commanding a fighter squadron illustrate the sort of man chosen to pilot these machines. At 27,000 feet a German shot away the glass roof of a British fighter's cockpit and set the engine on fire. The pilot leaned over to turn off the gasoline and another spray of machine gun bullets wounded him in the leg and hand. In some way, his oxygen tube was disconnected and he went into a "black out." He came to in a cloud, bailed out and landed in no-man's-land, eventually getting back to the station.

Another fighter pilot followed a Messerschmitt 109 right down to ground level where they did some contour jumping, chasing each other up and down hills, through valleys and among trees at 350 miles an hour. The German passed right under some high tension wires, a few feet above the ground, but the British pilot followed him and sent him crashing into a hill with a burst of machine gun fire.

Two more stories: A British pilot was caught 20 or 30 miles from his station without ammunition, so he "barrel-rolled" all the way home to avoid being an easy target. Another pilot, in the middle of a general dog-fight involving quite a few planes, had his machine set on fire. It isn't the easiest thing in the world to bail out at 300 or 400 miles an hour, so pulled his machine over on its back and dropped out, leaving his rip cord alone for 5,000 feet so as to clear the combat zone. French soldiers released him from the top branches of a tree and he ended up by inspecting French troops with a general.

Hun Air Tactics

German Air Attacks On Roads Filled With Refugees

Sam Pierce, of Dallas, Texas, a driver with the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps, told in a broadcast from Paris how he had witnessed German airplane attacks on roads filled with refugees.

"A formation of five Messerschmitts came down out of the skies and when they were about 500 feet above us they turned loose," Pierce said.

"All those who were too tired or too old to duck were the victims. They then turned after that work and shot the cattle in the fields. At the time there was not a military vehicle on the road anywhere. Within a radius of 500 yards there were about 30 killed and wounded."

Austrian Academy Opened

Refugees In Britain Determined To Keep Their Culture Alive

Refugee Austrians in Britain hoping for the restoration of the freedom of their country and determined to keep alive its culture have established an Austrian Academy in London, which was formally opened the other day. The president of the institution is Sir George Frankenstein, who for many years was Austrian Minister to the Court of St. James's and Baron Guld Fuchs is vice-president. "Our aim," Baron Fuchs explained to a representative of The London Times, "is to keep alive our glorious culture. The academy will furnish a means for the many exiled scholars and artists to continue their work in art and science. It is the fervent wish of Austrians that the academy may enable them by contributing to the intellectual life of Britain, to discharge a part of the debt of gratitude which they feel they owe for the hospitality they enjoy here, especially at a time when Britain is fighting with her allies for culture and freedom."

Greenland's population consists of 2,000 Eskimos and 400 Europeans.

Service Is Impressive

Anyone Can Attend Church In The Tower Of London

Although the Tower of London is closed, one may attend church service if one arrives before the bell has ceased to toll, states Mr. Gossip of the London Daily Sketch, who recently attended the service. One has to give the password "Church" to the guard. Under the first tower a Beefeater makes one enter one's name in a book. The lawns were a tender green, the banks of the moat covered with daffodils and tulips and the age-old stonework gleamed in the summer sun. The service is impressive beyond words and an excellent tonic in wartime.

The Greater Risk

An American insurance company's study of death risks shows that a driver hitting 60 m.p.h. at night incurs, along with his passengers, a 20 per cent. greater chance of meeting death than student pilots at the army and navy flying schools.

Comic strips produced by American artists appear in 32 foreign languages and in papers of most of the nations of the world.

The World of WheatBy H. G. L. STRANGE
Director, "The Crop Testing Pan."

Within the last few days Italy and most probably the whole of France will have to be included in the group of great overseas markets lost to the Canadian wheat grower. To Italy and France together in recent years Canada has exported an average of no less than 7 million bushels of wheat a year.

The temporary loss of the markets of France and Italy, together with others that have gone before, certainly will inflict considerable hardships on our wheat growers. However, it is wartime, and whatever the difficulties may be of the temporary loss of markets, they are small compared to the sacrifices being endured by the people of those countries, and who will have to suffer hunger while the war lasts. Our difficulties are small, too, compared with the acute sufferings of the people of Great Britain whose homes are being daily bombed.

There is one fundamental fact, however, we should never forget, which is that of the 2,000 million people in the world, about 700 million of which live in towns, cities, and villages, and so cannot grow their own food. Canadian farmers producing the highest quality of wheat, which is man's best food, will unquestionably in due course be called upon to do their share once again of feeding those many millions of hungry people.

Following factors have tended to raise prices: Weather and crop news from Roumania continues unfavorable - Supplies of good seed are very scarce in the Argentine - Heavy shipments of Argentine wheat to Spain and U.K. continue - Russian spring grain area is in need of moisture and prospects are unfavorable.

Following factors have tended to lower prices: France is seeking an Armistice with Germany and Italy - U.S.A. winter wheat crop continues to show unexpected improvement - A substantial increase has taken place in the moisture reserves in the Prairie Provinces during the past week.

Line Elevators Establish New Weed Service

In order to assist farmers in identifying weeds, the Line Elevators have established a special weed service.

Farmers who find any type of weed in their fields with which they are not familiar are invited to take it to their nearest line elevator agent. The weed will then be sent to the Agricultural Dept. of the Northwest Line Elevators' Association for identification. In its herbarium a collection has been made of every type of weed and weed-seed which grows in Western Canada.

If the farmer so desires, he may obtain from the line elevators' agricultural department the latest approved methods for the control and eradication of the weed. This is just one of the many services provided by the agricultural department set up by the line elevator companies under the direction of Dr. K. W. Neatby, one of the outstanding agriculturists of Western Canada.

A Woman's Viewpoint On War Situation

The following paper was given by Mrs. Durant at the Women's Missionary Society meeting held last week:

In these dark times in which we live there must be no blackout in our souls. In the darkest hour of his life the word of Jesus was, "Be of Good Cheer." We know it will be no new thing for God to work a miracle to save His people. We also know that religion is the supreme need of this hour and that right shall prevail, perhaps not today, but tomorrow. While brute force and cruelty and militarism threaten civilization we must proclaim, "Not by might nor by power but My Spirit."

If we women would sit and quietly listen to our intuitions we would hear a call to crusade. For this is the time and opportunity for women. It is a time which demands wisdom with great courage and patience. These three peculiar virtues of women are bred in us out of absolute devotion to one eternal cause, the race. We need wisdom today as never before and we need to pray for that wisdom.

Great and powerful nations are today denying and defying God. Jews and gentiles alike, are being persecuted, driven from church and home, robbed of their possessions and losing their lives as they try to reach safety. Little children, those same little children with reference to whom Jesus said, "For to such belong the Kingdom of Heaven," are now being taught to blaspheme, to sneer at the very possibility of a living, loving God. Their voices are lifted in hymns of hate; they are drilled to prate of a brotherhood of man created from a conception of force, violence and hate.

Against these teachings of hate, atheism and nazism we of the Democracies are fighting. Fighting for the right to live our lives as free people. We do not want war but when the ideals of Nazism are massed against us, pacifism in any form is treason. To refuse to bear arms, to refuse to help in the great work of the Red Cross, in fact to refuse to help in whatever way we can in this fight for liberty, justice and freedom is treason, treason of the highest degree.

Peace! Yes, we all want peace, but until the day dawns when this world is completely Christian in its beliefs and actions we must fight. Fight against the forces which have threatened to destroy the Christian civilization of the past 2000 years.

"Wars are won or lost not only by the armies in the field, the navy on the sea, or the airplanes in the air but also they are won by the people at home."

We know that in this war right is on our side. Do we realize that each one of us, wherever we are and whatever we are doing, can be the guardian of victory and might be the agent of defeat? The minds of citizens are the minds of the soldiers and the sailors and the airmen. We can hold them up or pull them down.

They are doing everything for us, what can we do for them?

All work well done is war work. It makes no difference whether it is in the factory or mine, workshop or office, railway or road. The humble count for as much in spirit, enthusiasm and discipline as the great.

The man or woman who puts every ounce of energy into his or her job sets the pace. Big job or small, the temper brought to it is what counts. Every man or woman is helping to victory who is carrying on and doing their best, with a good heart, a stiff upper lip, and a constant memory of what is at stake.

We are all soldiers now, in uniform or out of it. It is not the uniform but the spirit that matters.

Let us put all we have in the fight. Be optimistic. Be economical in our living that we may give more financially.

Calgary Stampede Bigger and Better Than Ever.

A most interesting and thrilling presentation of western sports, coupled with a splendid display of Alberta resources, will take place at the 55th annual Calgary Exhibition and Stampede to be held July 8th to 13th.

The events of the week include a representative display of agricultural implements and high quality livestock, industrial, art, photographic and domestic exhibits, dog and poultry shows. The Livestock Review, a parade of livestock exhibits, will be staged on Friday morning. This feature annually attracts large crowds.

North American and Canadian championship titles are awarded for bucking-horse riding, calf roping, steer decorating, wild steer and wild horse riding, wild cow milking, Indian racing, and the famous chuck wagon race. Running horse races are to be held daily.

"Flying Colors," a gorgeous stage review, will be presented each evening in front of the grandstand, following the chuck wagon race. The Indian Camp on the exhibition grounds is a great source of interest to visitors. On Friday night a dance will be given at the Cowboy Ball on Ninth Avenue.

An outstanding feature of the Calgary Stampede is Canada's largest and most spectacular fireworks display, Monday and Saturday nights. Included in Saturday night's program is a display of gorgeously dressed Indians.

Indications are that a large number of United States tourists will come to the Stampede and at the same time pay a visit to Canada's famous holiday ground, thus having worthwhile visit and also taking advantage of the favorable exchange rates.

This will be the last stampede under the management of Mr. E. L. Richardson, who after many successful years as general manager, is to retire shortly.

J. Chas. Yule, the present president of the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede has been appointed general manager to succeed Mr. Richardson. Mr. Yule will take over his new duties next term.

Beekkeepers Meet at Olds, July 4th

Arrangements are being made to hold a meeting of beekkeepers at the School of Agriculture on July 4th, starting at 2 p.m.

Mr. LeMaistre, Provincial Apiarist, and Mr. Yule of the O.S.A. staff will be prepared to give demonstrations and discuss various aspects of beekkeeping.

Miss McIntyre of the O.S.A. staff will speak on the topic of "Honey and Its Uses."

We hope that many beekkeepers and their wives or husbands will be present at the meeting to meet other beekkeepers and share their experiences.

Inaugurate New Bus Service

The Greyhound Bus Lines officially inaugurated on June 15th a new service that will take the traveller over the new National Parks Route on the way to the Pacific coast.

This route will be over the Banff-Windermere highway, via Banff, Johnston Canyon, Marble Canyon, Radium Hot Springs, Kimberley and Cranbrook (to cross the border at Kingsgate) and then on to Spokane, Seattle, and Vancouver (B.C.).

An alternative route is via the Crow's Nest Pass, over which the Greyhound service previously ran.

The new service will open to the traveller by bus, the incomparable scenic beauties of the Banff-Windermere route, with the additional advantages of passing through or stopping over if that is desired at such noted resorts as Banff, Windermere, Fairmont Hot Springs, Radium Hot Springs and other scenic points in the mountains along the way.

As in all Greyhound trips, generous stopover privileges are available enroute.

A Valuable Book Entitled "Food For Health" Now Available

A book, by doctors, entitled "Food for Health" that is genuinely useful and written so you can understand it, is now available to all our readers free of charge.

It actually lists menus feeding two adults and five children healthily at 23c a day, per person, and is full of good information.

The idea is to tell us all how to live simply and well, so as to avoid such a plague as settled over the world in the form of Flu in 1919 after the Great War.

If every Canadian would eat the proper foods in the proper quantities (set forth in the booklet) the consumption of Canadian grown foods would be increased by 12 per cent.

You should be able to get this "Food for Health" book through your local doctor, medical health officer, Red Cross worker, or life insurance representative, and we strongly advise you to do so at once—it's interesting, useful and a money and health saver.

If you can't get it, write Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR LIVER

It may be the cause of your troubles. Buck it up the right way, with Fruit-a-tives. Feel grand.

Your liver is the largest organ in your body and most important to your health. It pours out bile to digest food, gets rid of waste, stores energy, allows the proper nourishment to reach your blood. When your liver gets out of order food decomposes in your intestines. You become constipated, stomach and kidneys can't work properly. You feel "rotten"—headache, backache, dizzy, dragged out all the time.

Nation-Wide Appeal For Blankets Brings Quick Response

The nation-wide appeal for blankets for equipment of French hospital beds recently launched is resulting excellently in Saskatchewan. There has already been received more than 250 blankets. The express companies are delivering numerous packages three or four times a day to the Provincial Depot at Regina. It is a special way the population can meet an emergency, such as the Red Cross is expected to provide for. The blankets received were on the way to the seaboard within a day of arrival. Large quantities are expected each day from Red Cross branches and believe the total from Saskatchewan will be very large.

At a special meeting of the Advisory Committee of the Saskatchewan Red Cross a further $10,000.00 was voted to be sent to the National Office of the Society in Toronto for financing overseas emergency commitments, which the Red Cross of Canada has been called upon to make in aid of the British Red Cross and the French Society endeavoring to meet the tremendous task of caring for all military and refugee casualties requiring hospitalization.

PEOPLE JUDGE YOU BY YOUR TABLE MANNERS

Be Careful Not to Offend

The girl who's never learned the important little differences in table manners—what an embarrassing companion she can be for a young man of background.

Stopping for tea at the country club, she heartily bites into a whole sandwich never guessing that it's as much of an error as to bite a whole piece of bread. You break a sandwich or a piece of bread as you eat it.

Avoiding such offending blunders is simple if you check up on etiquette. Does the question of "Fingers versus Forks" worry you? Use a fork for club and three-decker sandwiches, for layer and frosted cakes, French pastry.

These foods are eaten with the fingers; crisp curls of bacon, celery and radishes, olives, Saratoga chips, cookies, plain cakes.

What should you do with your napkin as you rise from the table at a dinner party? Tuck it, half folded, under the edge of your plate.

The answers to dozens of other questions on table etiquette are given in our 32-page booklet. Has pointers on table setting, tells what's correct at formal dinners, restaurants and clubs, teas and buffet suppers—a guide to make you at ease anywhere.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Good Table Manners" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.

By JOHN C. KIRKWOOD

This summer and autumn Portugal is to celebrate the 800th anniversary of the founding of the Portuguese State in 1140. There is to be an Exhibition of the Portuguese world. The great days of Portuguese history will be made occasion for special celebrations. These great days include the expulsion of the Moors; the achievements of Prince Henry the Navigator and Navigator; the voyages of Vasco de Gama, who sailed adventurously to discover a route to fabulous India; the circumnavigation of the globe by Magellan; the winning of Brazil for Portugal; and the establishment in the New World of a vast empire.

The situation of Portugal—at the edge of the mysteries of the Great Ocean fostered the longing of the Portuguese to go to distant places. In the course of a single century the Portuguese reached out to nearly two-thirds of the earth. They colonized the islands of Madeira and the Azores; they mapped the practically unknown coast of Africa; they discovered the Australian continent; they visited Abyssinia; they took possession of Brazil; they found a sea-way to India; they discovered Greenland; they visited Ceylon; they went to the coasts of China. Her present lowly status in the roster of nations is not preventing Portugal from recalling her past glorious history and place in the sun.

Some day soon you may be offered an investment opportunity which will make gold mines quite uninteresting to you. You may be offered a chance to buy shares in a company installing 5-cent "movies" in beer parlors, cocktail lounges, and pool rooms—and perhaps in arcades. In the United States a dozen companies are engaged in this sort of enterprise. At the head of one of these companies is James Roosevelt, son of the American president. These new mechanisms are likely to replace the half-million phonographs operating, on the insertion of a nickel in a slot, in bar rooms, lunch rooms, pool rooms and other like places.

The slot-machine films, when set going, last for three minutes. There

Author Gives His Opinion

Quite Confident Food Will Win The War For Allies

Russia will step in on the side of the Allies if she thinks Germany may win the war, but Germany will lose the war because she can't produce the food or metal necessary to keep her troops going, George E. Sokolsky said in Toronto. The New York author was formerly editor of newspapers in Petrograd, Peiping and Shanghai.

In Toronto last November, Mr. Sokolsky said Germany can't win the war. "I haven't changed my mind since then," he declared recently. "Even if the Germans held Paris or bombed London I would not change my mind. Germany can't feed its people with bombers, and it is food that finally will win the war for the Allies."

Mr. Sokolsky said even if a German attack paralyzed production of food and mechanical equipment in England and France, the Allies could draw on North America. "But where could Germany turn?" he asked. "According to the published figures in German papers, the rations there are lower now than at the end of the last war. And with her increased population, Germany is in a difficult spot. If she doesn't win the war by September, she must be prepared to face a bad harvest."

The writer said Germany's only source of food supply would be Russia and Roumania, and that it was a question whether she would outlast the winter.

"But the Germans know this and are basing their entire strategy on it. In Poland alone we know 2,000,000 Jews have died of starvation already."

Asked whether Russia would help Germany, Mr. Sokolsky said: "I'll never help anyone but myself. Stalin knows a victorious Germany could send ten divisions to Russia and drive Stalin's army to the Urals."

So Stalin is watching and waiting for an exhausted Europe, which would play right into his hands. But he doesn't want Hitler to win, and if it looks as though he will Stalin will step in on the side of the Allies to form an eastern front."

But before you put any money into a company making and, or operating the new mechanism, it might be wise to inquire into the history of that other somewhat similar enterprise—the making of a dozen or so photographs of yourself for 25 cents, you sitting in a gaudy booth while the camera did its stuff. When these "photofilm" companies began operations, they were supposed to make limitless millions for those holding shares in them, yet one does not hear much about these photo-taking machines nowadays.

Those Norwegian fjords about which we have been reading so much lately were formed by glaciers. When the glaciers melted away in a long-past age, the sea flowed into the valleys thus made. These fjords cut inland sometimes for more than 100 miles. The largest and longest of them has a length of 112 miles, and there are great precipices some of them 4,000 feet high. Down these precipices and bordering hillsides may tumble waterfalls. At the end of the fjords may be low-lying countryside dotted with the houses of farming folk. Here, too, villages and cities may be found. In some of the fjords the Oslo fjord, for example— islands occur.

Health LEAGUE of CANADA presents TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST by DR. J. W. S. McCULLOUGH

HEALTH EDUCATION

"That so much health education has been achieved has been to a large degree due to the generous co-operation of the Press of Canada," says an editorial in the current issue of "Health", the official organ of the Health League of Canada.

Pointing to the fact that the chief function of the League is the education of the public in matters of health and the prevention of disease, the editorial in question speaks gratefully and appreciatively of the help which Canadian newspapers are always ready to extend to a good cause.

"Weekly for many years," says Health, "the Health League of Canada has provided a news service to Canadian papers, which has been widely printed in newspapers throughout the Dominion."

Through the medium of its official organ, the League, which at present is conducting a special war-time campaign of educational lectures and demonstrations in connection with the most profitable and nutritional selection, preparation and cooking of foods, also acknowledges the generous donating of free time by the radio stations of Canada for the broadcasting of health talks.

Education by means of press and radio has had a definite and noticeable influence on the development of public opinion in disease prevention matters, declares the editorial.

Editorial Note: Readers who would like a valuable set of articles on the Cause and Control of Cancer may obtain them—free of all charge—by writing to: The Health League of Canada, Dept. W.N.C., 111 Avenue Road, Toronto, Ont. Just say: "Please send me Dr. McCullough's articles on Cancer", and print your name and address plainly.

A Prison-Gate Arrest

"What do you want?" asked Ingle again.

"Me? Nothing! I've been up to the prison making a few inquiries about a friend of one of those mocking birds, but you know what they are—it was love's labor lost, so to speak," said Elk, lighting a cigar and offering the case to his companion.

Ingle took the brown cylinder, snuffed it, and, biting off the end savagely, accepted the light which the detective held for him. By this time the train was moving and they were free from any possibility of interruption.

"Let me see; I heard something about you the other day . . . What was it?" Mr. Elk held his forehead, a picture of perplexity. "I've got it!" he said. "There was a burglary at your flat."

The cigar dropped from the man's hand.

"A burglary?" he said shrilly. "What was stolen?"

"Somebody opened the safe in your locker room."

Ingle sprang to his feet, his teeth bared, his eyes glaring.

"The safe!" He almost screamed the words. "Opened the safe—damn them! They're not satisfied with sending me to five years of this hell, but they want to catch me again, do they?"

Elk let him rave on until, in his rage, the man's voice sank to a hoarse rattle of sound.

"I hope you didn't lose any money?"

"Money!" snarled the man. "Do you think I'm the kind who puts money in a safe? You know what I lost!" He pointed an accusing finger at the detective. "You fellows did it! So that's why you're here, eh? A prison-gate arrest, is it?"

"My dear, good man!" Elk was pained. "I don't know what you're talking about! You're no more under arrest than I am. You could walk out of that door as free as the air, if the train wasn't moving."

And then he asked:

"What did they pinch?"

It was a long time before the man recovered himself.

"If you don't know I'm not going to tell you," he said. "Some day . . ." he ground his teeth and in his eyes glared the fires of fanaticism. "You and the likes of you call me a thief!" His voice rose again as he talked rapidly. "You branded me and put me into prison—segregated me from my kind . . . a pariah, a leper! For what? For skinning off a little of the stolen cream! For taking a little of the money wrested from sweating bodies and breaking hearts! It was mine—mine!" He struck his chest with a bony fist, his eyes blazing. "The money belonged to me—to my fellows, to those men there!" He pointed back to where, beyond the brow of a rise, lay the grim prison building. "I took it from these fat and greasy men, and I'm glad of it! One jewel less for their horrible women; one motor car fewer for their slaves to clean!"

Revolution Stuff

"Great idea," murmured Elk sympathetically.

"You? What are you? The lackey of a class," sneered Ingle. "The hired torturer—the prison-feeder!"

"Quite right," murmured Elk, hastening with closed eyes.

"If they found those papers they're something to think about—do you hear?—something to spoil their night's sleep. And if there is sedition in them I'm willing to go back to Princetown."

Elk opened his eyes quickly.

"Oh, was that what it was?" he asked, disappointed. "Revolution stuff?"

The man nodded curtly.

"I thought it was something worth while," said Elk, annoyed. "Silly idea, though, isn't it, Ingle?"

"To you, yes. To me, no," snapped the other. "I hate England! I hate the English! I hate all the middle-class people, the sniveling, self-satisfied swine! I hated them when I was a starving actor and they sat in their stalls with a sneer on their faces. . . . He choked.

"There's a lot to be said for fat people," mused Elk. "Now take Harlow—though you wouldn't call him a fat man."

"Harlow!" scoffed the other. "Another of your moneyed gods!"

Evidently he remembered something, for he stopped suddenly.

"Moneyed gods?" suggested Elk.

"I don't know." The man shook his head. "He may not be what he seems. In there"—he jerked his head backward—"they say he's crook to his back teeth! But he doesn't rob the poor. He takes it in large slabs from the fat men."

"If that's so, I've nothing to say. He's on the side of law and order," said Elk gently. "A man who hands out police stations as Christmas presents can't be wholly bad!"

By the time the train pulled into Plymouth Station, Detective Inspector Elk was perfectly satisfied that there was nothing further to be learnt from the man. He went to the telegraph office and sent a wire to Jim which was short and expressive:

Revolution stuff. Nothing important.

He was on the same train that carried Mr. Ingle to London, but he did not occupy the same compartment, except for half an hour after the train flashed through Bath, when he strolled into the carriage and sat down by the man's side, and apparently he was welcome, for Ingle started talking.

To Her Fate

"Have you seen anything of my niece? Does she know about the burglary? I think you told me, but I was so angry that I can't remember." And, when Elk had given him the fullest particulars: "Harlow! Why did he come? He met Aileen at Dartmoor, you say?" He frowned and suddenly slapped his knee. "I remember the fellow. He was sprawling in his car by the side of the road when we came back from the field that day. So that was Harlow! Does he know Aileen?" he asked suspiciously.

"They met at Dartmoor; that's all I know."

Ingle gave one of his characteristic shrugs.

"I suppose he's running after her? She's a pretty sort of girl. With that type of man, money's no object. She's old enough to look after herself without any assistance."

So this Utopian left Aileen Rivers to her fate.

He had wired from Plymouth asking her to call at the flat that night, and she arrived just as he had finished ished a dinner that he had cooked for himself.

"Yes, I've heard about the burglary," he said, cutting short her question. "They've got nothing that was worth a shilling to them, thank God! Why did you call in the police?"

And he had a shock.

"Whom else should I have called in—a doctor?" she asked.

It was the first time he had met her in a period of freedom. She had had her instructions to look after the flat, smuggled out of prison by a discharged convict, and their talks during the brief visiting hours had been mainly on business.

"What does one usually do when a burglary is discovered?" she asked. "I sent for the police—of course I sent!"

He stared at her fiercely, but she did not flinch. It was his eyes which dropped first.

"I suppose it's all right," he said, and then: "You know Harlow, don't you?"

"I met him at Dartmoor, yes."

"A friend of yours?"

"No more than you are," she said, and he had his second shock.

"I'm not going to quarrel with you, and I don't see why you should want to get fresh with me," he snapped. "You've been useful, but I've not been ungenerous. Harlow is a friend of yours."

"He called here on the night of the burglary to offer me a job," she replied, without any visible evidence of her rising anger. "I met him at Princetown and he seemed to think that because of my relationship with you, I should find it rather difficult to get employment."

He muttered something under his breath which she did not catch, and it occurred to her that she had cowed this bullying little man, though she had no such intention.

"I shall not want you any more."

He took out his pocketbook, opened it and extracted a bank note. "This is in the nature of a bonus," he said. "I do not intend continuing your allowance."

He expected her to refuse the money, and he was not wrong.

"Is that all?" she asked. She did not attempt to take up the note.

"That is all."

With a nod she turned and walked to the door.

"The charwomen are coming tonight to clean up," she said. "You had better make arrangements for one of them to stay on—but I suppose you've already made your plans."

Before he could reply, she was gone. He heard the street door slam after her, took up the money and put it back in his case, and he was without regret, for, if the truth be told, Mr. Arthur Ingle, despite the largeness of his political views, was exceedingly mean.

There was a great deal for him to do: old boxes to open and sort, papers and memoranda to retrieve from strange hiding places. The seat of the big settee on which Aileen had sat so often waiting for the hired women to finish their work, opened like a lid, and here he had documents, and, in a steel box, passbooks that might not have come to light even if the police had been aware of the flat at the time of his arrest and had made their usual search.

When modern man gains weight, he has only to loosen his belt or have his suit let out. Knights of old had a real problem in keeping their waists down, for armor was costly and allowed for little expansion.

Houses were built at the rate of 1,000 a day in England and Wales just before the war.

Golf! Golf! Golf!

Attention of all golfers is drawn to the fact that the local course is now in better shape than for many years. All greens have been re-sanded and oiled; bridges and fence styles have been built, and for the first time in several years all fairways have been mowed.

To date only two cards have been handed in on the last tournament.
It is therefore the duty of all golfers to complete their games by the end of June, when a new tournament will be drafted.

Boost your Club by being an enthusiastic golfer—and please—let the secretary have your dues NOW!
As this goes to the press the Club is financially embarrassed.
